BIRTH.—At 29, Elgin Street, on the 3rd January, the wife of Sir Edward Gurney, Jr., of a daughter: [REDACTED] MARGARET.

At St. John's Cathedral, Hongkong, on the 3rd December, 1892, by Rev. Mr. F. Cobbold, Colonial Chaplain, WILLIAM COLES, to ADA HAWARD, eldest daughter of Mr. EDWIN HAWARD, master of the steamship Scylla, of Sydney, N.S.W. [REDACTED] [REDACTED]

On the 31st December, at Union Church, by the Rev. Mr. W. D. Bradwood, Headmaster of the Victoria College, K. E. COLEMAN, son of Mr. F. COLEMAN, of Bath, England, and Mrs. COLEMAN, of Bath.

At St. John's Church, Hongkong, on the 31st December, by the Rev. Mr. F. Cobbold, Mr. HUGH POLLOCK TOWER, C.E., Public Works Department, Hongkong, to AMY WICKERS, youngest daughter of Mr. J. W. WICKERS, of London.

At the Trinity Cathedral, Shanghai, on the 12th December, by the Rev. Mr. Archdeacon Moul, Dr. JOHN LEATHAN, of L.C. Navy, to HENRY BLUNCE LAURA MARIE CLARK, of Glasgow.

DEATHS.

On 27th, died at his residence, Grosvenor Gardens, Belgrave Road, M. A. DE CARVALHO, aged 66. Last paper prints copy.

At Shanghai, on the 25th December, 1892, GIOVANNI SARTORI, brother of MR. GIOVANNI FRANKE, last and oldest son of the late Vincenzo Sartori.

At Shenzhou, on the 25th December, 1892, SIMON O. DAVIDSON, a native of Salem, Mass., U.S.A., aged 55 years.

There will be a practice game of hockey to-day at 4.30 p.m. in the Happy Valley.

The China Mutual steamer Kremer, from London and Liverpool, left Singapore for this port yesterday and may be expected here on or about the 11th inst.

At the meeting of the Sanitary Board yesterday there was no business of public interest. The mortality returns for the two weeks were presented and certain scavenging contracts were approved.

For keeping a tea agency on the Praya Chana a Chinese was paid $100 by Mr. Weddell yesterday, and being unable to pay the amount was removed for three months' imprisonment with hard labor.

Referring to a report forwarded by the French Consul at Macao that a Chinese military officer had been captured by the pirates the Avenir du Tonkin suggests that if the report be true, which it doubts, the affair may be a measure on the part of the Chinese authorities to give an appearance of freedom to that part further incursion into Tonkin. If hands who are really in the pay of China have more than once been answered to those who were urging "progress" on the Chinese that the time would come when their progress would be more rapid than might be quite agreeable to their foreign neighbours. Such a time may indeed come. But in the meantime the symptoms of a kind of progress in which real interests are accumulating with ominous rapidity. Two of the most ardent Chinese reformers of our day, the two most resolute apostles of material progress, have broken their necks over obstructions which they were too impudent to recognize, and instead of advancing the cause of improvement have probably established by their conspicuously failure such a reaction against foreign ideas, and new ideas, whether foreign or not, as will discredit and retard reform, for perhaps a generation to come. The courage displayed by the Government of Formosa, when appointed to the Government of Formosa, left nothing to be desired, and was given a free hand to work out his grand ideal there. No man has ever had such a chance! An island of great natural wealth, of breakwater ed resources, possessing a thriving population of Chinese with a background of noble savages to give a touch of piety to the problem, offered to a bold experimenter the very ideal conditions for working out schemes of exploitation and for developing a pure and vigorous administration. The career of Liu Ming-chuan stands as a warning to Chinese officials against running their heads against stone walls, for the great man may be said to have politically perished amid the ruins of his new enterprises.

The Viceroy CHANG CHING-TUNG stands out as another beacon to ambitious officials. The headlong way he plunged into reforms and improvements in Canton, without stopping to count the cost, and the chaos in which he left the finances of his province, would have brought any other official under the severest discipline of the Central Government. But CHANG has a specialty—honesty. This is the talisman with which he defies fate. If he makes shipwreck of his revenues, it is not for his personal advantage, and the consequences of his reckless extravagance have therefore no terror for him. His reputation for honesty is in truth a misnomer for his country, and with such an awful example before them the Chinese may be excused for preferring the ordinary peccadillo mandarin who is amenable to public opinion and can be made to answer for his iniquities, to this model of integrity, who tramples on restraint and flings away the resources of the country in pursuit of will-o'-the-wisp schemes. It seemed a weak thing on the part of the Central Government when they delivered the Kwang provinces from the misrule of this satrap to transmit him to a sphere where he would have another opportunity of repeating his extravagance. There may nevertheless have been policy in this move, for the Government, seeing no safer way of suppressing this enfant terrible, may have decided to give him all the rope he required, even if it should exhaust the province as it had already done the Kwang. Scarcely was he settled in his new Government when the Viceroy CHANG set his heart on producing iron. His political eye in a fit frenzy rolling saw that China was paying large sums of money to foreign countries for iron in various forms, guns, ships, machinery of all kinds. "I will stop that," said the man of genius; "China shall produce her own iron." And overlooking all the intermediate but most necessary processes between the inception and the consummation of the scheme, the enthusiasm of iron so carried the man of genius off his legs that we were told he wrote two years ago to his colleague Li Huo-chang requesting him to buy more iron rails and things, for that in a few months he, CHANG, would supply them from Hangchow.

The great works at that place have been described by able pen and we have no wish to disparage these descriptions. The works no doubt are magnificent, and they are undoubtedly costly. Many foreign manufacturers and foreign experts have grown fat out of them. But it has always been observed that no one could see where the directing power came in. There was no visible co-ordination. Contracts were made and let, to give them a start, but no one could see what the foreign engineers did for the evangelization carried on within her borders. Fair provinces have been devastated and millions of lives sacrificed. What trouble may have been caused to the people by the missionaries, and particularly to the women, is a question which it seems to be tending. CHANG has already had his Tuping Revolution as a result of the evangelization carried on within her borders. Fair provinces have been devastated and millions of lives sacrificed.
